

Protection of Vulnerable Adults

Introduction

Safeguarding adults at risk refers to protecting those adults at risk from abuse or neglect. It is a shared priority of many public services including Local Authorities, the Police and Health Boards.

This factsheet looks at complaints about safeguarding adults at risk by the Local Authority's Social Services department.

Complaints about the care of an adult at risk should first be brought to the attention of the Local Authority and looked at under the Social Services complaint procedure. We will normally expect these procedures to have been followed before making a complaint to us. However, if there are good reasons why this is not possible, we may consider accepting a complaint before then.

What we can do

We can:

- Look at a complaint that an adult at risk has suffered injustice as a result of failure in service or a failure in administration by a Local Authority in Wales;
- Look at a complaint about whether a Local Authority has followed the statutory adult safeguarding procedure and the statutory Social Services complaint procedure;
- Look at a complaint that a Local Authority has failed to act on the recommendations of the independent investigating officer at Stage 2 of the statutory Social Services complaint procedure.

What we cannot do

We cannot:

- Directly investigate complaints about abuse. That is the responsibility of the organisations involved in safeguarding adults at risk;
- Look at any issues of suspension, discipline or any personnel issues about members of Social Services staff.

Issues to bear in mind

We can look into complaints about the actions of Social Services in terms of safeguarding adults at risk. We can also look into complaints about the Health Service's actions in such cases. We cannot, however, look at any complaints about the Police. If you want to complain about the part played by the Police in these matters, you must complain to the relevant Police Commissioner.

Health Boards can also be responsible for carrying out an investigation in circumstances where alleged abuse has taken place within an NHS care setting or where an NHS employee is alleged to have abused an adult at risk.

We can also investigate complaints about a Health Board and its management of adult safeguarding concerns. The police conduct investigations into any alleged criminal offences.

We may need to share information with other bodies where we are of the view that there may be a threat to the health or safety of one or more persons and believe that the information should be disclosed in the public interest.
